

Constructive Scenario Play

Theme : 'Bollywood'

Introduction:-

Hello everyone... My name is harsh mehta and today we are presenting a small play which is a parody of The English Language and Bollywood. I would like to introduce my friends.

...

Hoping that you will like it . Enjoy...!

Characters:

1. Producer (Ms. Manya)
2. Director (Mr. Mann)
3. Actor (Nishit)
4. Actress (Monika)
5. Scriptwriter (Harsh)

Scene: The producer, director, actor, actress, and scriptwriter are gathered around a table for a rehearsal before the actual shoot. The set is chaotic, with a mix of Bollywood and English movie posters on the walls. The director is standing with a script in hand.

Ms. Manya (Producer):

Alright, everyone! We are making history today! A Bollywood movie... in English! We will show Hollywood what real cinema is!

Mr. Mann (Director):

Yes, yes! This is going to be the biggest hit! Just imagine... Nishit! Monika! The two of you will be speaking fluent... err... English!

Nishit (Actor):

(slightly nervous) Uhm, Director saab, English is not coming very well. I mean, well English is... what I am saying?

Monika (Actress):

(shyly) Yes, Director ji, I am also having the problem of talking in English. It is like... my tongue is dancing!

Harsh (Scriptwriter):

Don't worry! I have written everything in simple English. Very easy. Just like "Twinkle Twinkle Little Star!"

Mr. Mann (Director):

(sighs) Okay, let's do a rehearsal. Scene 1, Nishit proposes to Monika. Action!

Nishit (Actor):

(stumbles) Monika, you... you are the... like the sugar in my tea and the... the... (pauses) cream in my cream roll. I am liking you very much from bottom of my heart to the top of my head. Will you... umm... marry-ify me?

Monika (Actress):

(blushing) Oh Nishit! You are the... flower in my garden and the... the... (thinks hard) spoon in my kitchen! I will be marry-ifying you!

Mr. Mann (Director):

(throws hands in the air) Cut! Cut! What is this "marry-ify"? And what is this "cream roll"? Harsh, did you write this nonsense?

Harsh (Scriptwriter):

(defensively) It's creative, sir! Unique! No one else is using such English!

Ms. Manya (Producer):

(laughs) This is fantastic! We'll call it... "Bollywood Goes English!" The audience will love it!

Mr. Mann (Director):

(sighs) Alright, Scene 2! The dramatic confrontation. Nishit, you have to tell Monika that you can't live without her. Ready? Action!

Nishit (Actor):

(very dramatic) Monika! Without you, my life is like a... a samosa without aloo, a chai without elaichi, a Bollywood movie without dance! I cannot... how to say... exist in this condition!

Monika (Actress):

(teary-eyed) Nishit! You are my... umm... my... you are my Wi-Fi! Without you, I am not connecting! I am also not existing in this condition!

Mr. Mann (Director):

(facepalms) Harsh, what is this Wi-Fi nonsense?

Harsh (Scriptwriter):

(excited) Sir, it's modern! The audience will connect with it!

Ms. Manya (Producer):

(laughing uncontrollably) This is gold! Keep going, keep going! Next scene!

Mr. Mann (Director):

(sighs deeply) Fine. Last scene. Nishit, you are running to stop Monika from leaving. You shout her name in slow motion. Ready? Action!

Nishit (Actor):

(tries to speak slowly but messes up) Monikaaaa... Don't gooooo... You are... very much... special to meeeee!

Monika (Actress):

(turns dramatically) Nishit! You are... also very much... special to meeee!

Mr. Mann (Director):

(laughs despite himself) Cut! Cut! That was... actually good. This might just work!

Ms. Manya (Producer):

(smiling) I told you! Bollywood in English, full masala! This will be a blockbuster!

Everyone (together):

laughs

End Scene